Lights, camera, action in Ottawa

FILM

This summer could be busy for local crews

 Lucy Scholey
Metro | Ottawa

The film industry spotlight may be shining on Ottawa this summer, but some production companies are bracing for fewer film resources.

The FIFA Women's World Cup and the possibility of a CBC TV series returning to the nation's capital could make for more cameras rolling into the city — and a scramble for people to handle them.

"It's going to be tremendously busy," said Rob Menzies, vice president of Zed Filmworks. "We're worried about crew right now."

His Ottawa-based company is filming seven productions between now and the end of the year, with budgets ranging from $1 million to $6 million.

There are roughly two crews in Ottawa, a city that's squeezed between Montreal's and Toronto's thriving film hubs. That means about a total 100 to 150 people qualified for jobs in production, art and electrical work.

"It will be a fight for people, absolutely," said Menzies, adding there will be some overlap between productions.

However, he's optimistic:

"It's ultimately a good problem to have. More work is always better than less work. But it does pose some challenges, for sure."

CBC recently announced the revival of its TV series Michael: Tuesdays & Thursdays. There's still no word on whether the series will film in Ottawa again.

Bruce Harvey, head of Invest Ottawa's Film Office, said the city can expect crews to be out shooting b-roll of the FIFA Women's World Cup and there may be film spin-off from other activities, like the Toronto 2015 Pan Am & Parapan American Games. A Toronto-based animation house is also eyeing the capital as a location.

To help out the stretched-thin industry, Invest Ottawa is organizing a job fair for film production crews at Lansdowne Park on May 30.

As someone who hustles to draw a bigger film industry to the city, Harvey welcomes the action.

"There's no reason why we shouldn't be substantially bigger in film industry and production than we are now," he said.

The University of Ottawa would like all 50,800 of its students to walk or bike to class. A whopping 80 per cent do, but the school is encouraging the rest to leave their cars behind. # Sens confident better times ahead

OFF-SEASON

Ottawa has goalie decision to make this summer

The sting of disappointment hasn't left, but the promise of better times ahead has defenceman Marc Methot and his Senators teammates going into the off-season with confidence.

The Senators packed their bags Tuesday, two days after their season ended with a 2-0 loss to Montreal. That gave the Canadiens the best-of-seven Eastern Conference quarter-final series in six games.

But there was plenty for the Senators to feel good about. They made history by becoming the first team ever to qualify for the postseason after being 14 points back.

"When I look back at our record from the last couple months of the season, I mean we did nearly the impossible in terms of getting in," said Methot. "Mixing that in with some incredible performances, individual performances from some guys, including Hammer.

"What he was able to do for us to get us in as a team was huge, and you can't forget all those little things."

Much of Ottawa's success was the result of rookie goaltender Andrew Hammond, who went 20-1-2 down the stretch. He's scheduled to become an unrestricted free agent July 1 and ideally would like to remain with the Senators.

"I love the city of Ottawa and I would like to come back here," he said.

"But at the end of the day, there's two goaltenders on one-way contracts, so we'll see what happens."

The other two are Craig Anderson and Robin Lehner, meaning Ottawa will have a decision to make this summer. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pets rescued from townhouse blaze

Three snakes, two iguanas, one cat and one dog were all rescued from a fire that broke out in a townhouse in the city's west end on Tuesday afternoon, while two people were treated for smoke inhalation.

Ottawa Fire Services received a 911 call just after 1:15 p.m. about a fire at 90 Brockinton Cres., which is north of the Nepean Sportsplex, that appeared to have started in the kitchen. Fire crews quickly brought the fire under control.

Paramedics also treated a 19-year-old woman for smoke inhalation. She went to hospital in serious but stable condition. A 21-year-old man was also treated and was sent to hospital in stable condition. The cause of the blaze is under investigation.

Ontario spent $7M on consultants for Hydro One

Ontario spent nearly $7 million on consultants who helped a Liberal government-appointed panel to recommend selling a majority of Hydro One and changes to beer sales. The premier's office says having the consultants' technical expertise makes the government "confident" that the panel's recommendations are "evidence-based and in the best interest of Ontarians."

Former TD Bank CEO Ed Clark was tapped by the Liberals to lead the panel, which earlier this month recommended the hydro sale and reforms to beer sales. Several firms including KPMG, PricewaterhouseCoopers and McKinsey and Company were paid a total of about $6.8 million for advice to Clark's panel. THE CANADIAN PRESS

If you slept through your teacher's anatomy lesson in high school, the Museum of Nature has an eye-opening exhibit that will either make your skin crawl or your jaw drop.

The Body Worlds: Animal Inside Out exhibit is coming to Canada for the first time, starting in Ottawa this Friday.

Among the collection of 100 animal specimens that have been preserved through plastination are a bull, a giraffe, a trio of camels, an ostrich and even a human.

With the skin removed, the creatures' organs and muscle tissue are all exposed.

Sounds gross, right?

"No, it's not at all," said Dr. Angelina Whalley, the conceptual designer who brought the exhibit to Canada.

"As soon as you have the proper reason behind it and the proper science behind it, it's a completely different thing. For me, the body is like a treasure. I'm grateful to be able to investigate the body interior."

Plastination dates back to the 1970s, when Dr. Gunther von Hagens discovered a method for stopping the decaying process in animal specimens for educational purposes.

Five 15-metre trucks were needed to get the marquee attraction to the museum.

Whalley, who is also the director of the Institute for Plastination in Heidelberg, Germany, said she hopes Body Worlds will generate a greater appreciation of animal life and teach humans how fragile nature really is.

"First of all, I want to fascinate them. I want to make them aware of the huge diversity, and there are a lot of commonalities as well," she said.

"My sincere goal is by providing all this knowledge that

THE PROCESS

- Formaldehyde is used to stop the animal from decaying.
- The animal is dissected to expose the inner structures of the body.
- Decay is dependent on water, so tissue water is removed from the body and replaced with a solvent (acetone).
- The process of "forced vacuum impregnation" draws acetone out of the specimen and soaks the polymer solution into each individual cell.
- Once all the tissues are imbued with the silicone, it is removed and the specimen is given a life-like posture.
- The specimen is irreversibly cured with a gas.

people are gaining more respect for all these creatures but (also) for life in general. I'm sure it will."

Body Worlds runs May 1 to Sept. 20.

The OPP charged two Ottawa men with drug offences after conducting a R.I.D.E. traffic blitz on the Maitland 417 eastbound on ramp Tuesday.

Police from an Ottawa detachment noticed the passenger of the vehicle was not wearing his seat belt. When they pulled the vehicle over they spotted an undisclosed quantity of drugs and a pro-

Thursday, May 7, 6 pm to 8 pm
NCC Headquarters, Capital Urbanism Lab
40 Elgin Street, 5th Floor, Ottawa

The National Capital Commission (NCC) is pleased to invite the public to a discussion on conserving the legacy of modern architecture and design. Architects, landscape architects and engineers of the 20th century used experimental materials and construction techniques to create buildings and shape places. They espoused radically new philosophies in their architecture, dramatically changing the shape of our cities. Today, this modern heritage is threatened, as new philosophical approaches take hold, and as the "modern" is seen as outdated and not worthy of conservation.

Our panel will discuss the emergence of modernism, the architectural legacy we have inherited, and why and how we should conserve our "modern" heritage. The panel will consist of the following experts:

Susan Aglie Director, Winnipeg Architecture Foundation
Francine Vanlaethem Professor, Université du Québec à Montréal, and author of Patrimoine en devenir

Ottawa families left high and dry after contractor vanishes

LAWSUIT

One man gave a $9,598 deposit for a deck that was never built

Haley Ritchie
Metro | Ottawa

Two Ottawa families are trying to recoup tens of thousands of dollars from a contractor who took their money and then walked out on half-finished jobs, court documents show.

Now the families are wondering if they'll ever see their money again.

Anthony Weicker and his wife hired contractor Devon Morgan two years ago to build them a new deck. Morgan was a subcontractor for another company the Weickers had previously worked with, so they didn't bother to do a deep background check.

Documents filed in court show Weicker agreed to pay Morgan $13,327 to build the deck. They gave him a $9,598 deposit as a down payment.

Morgan worked for a few weeks, but Weicker says some of the building materials the contractor apparently ordered never showed up.

Weicker and Morgan exchanged text messages, filed in court, about the missing materials. Before long, Morgan stopped responding to Weicker's texts and then seemed to vanish.

Weicker sued Morgan. An Ontario small claims court ordered Morgan to pay Weicker $7,567 plus court costs and disbursements. But Morgan never did.

He did, however, leave a shovel and a wheelbarrow behind. Weicker finished the job himself because, he says, no contractors would touch the framing that Morgan left behind after hearing the story.

"It kind of showed a pattern from the beginning that he knew what he was doing, that he intended to take the money and run."

Anthony Weicker

that he intended to take the money and run," Weicker told Metro.

"It was deceitful."

Weicker and his wife soon found out they weren't alone.

In 2013, Gaelle Develter hired Morgan to build an addition to her home to make life easier for her daughter, who has a disability that makes it difficult for her to climb stairs.

She came across Morgan on Kijiji, the online classified website.

"He seemed very organized and seemed to know his job quite well," she said. "He was pleasant and answered all our questions. I trusted him."

She and Morgan signed a contract for the job on April 2 of that year. He asked for a large amount of money up front to cover the cost of building materials. But after paying him more than $50,000, Develter and her family realized something wasn't right.

Building materials never showed up and no one seemed to know where they were.

Develter said Morgan never worked a regular schedule. His workers didn't seem to know how to reach him.

By the end of May 2013, Develter and her husband were no longer able to reach Morgan. Someone else was living at the address he gave them.

Meanwhile, their addition was an empty shell and their yard was littered with broken glass and metal.

Repeated efforts to reach Morgan were unsuccessful.

Weicker called the experience a stressful ordeal.

"I'm not a vindictive person, but it would be nice to see him held accountable for what he did," he said.

Morgan. She, too, won her case against Morgan.

Morgan was eventually charged with several offences under the Consumer Protection Act. Last month, he was convicted in the Ontario Court of Justice in Ottawa and sentenced to 45 days in jail followed by two years' probation.

He was also ordered to pay a total of $42,566 to two consumers. His company, Captain Construction, was also fined another $30,000.

But it seems Morgan has left town. Weicker and Develter both say they have heard he may be in Alberta.

Repeated efforts to reach Morgan were unsuccessful.

Weicker called the experience a stressful ordeal.

"I'm not a vindictive person, but it would be nice to see him held accountable for what he did," he said.

DUFFY TRIAL

Expense claim edict passed by word of mouth, court hears

Senate expense policies were broad, vague and confusing — and now a court is hearing that at least one of them was passed along between administrative staff by word of mouth.

The Senate's top financial official, Nicole Proulx, testified Tuesday that she was told at some point in the past that senators were not allowed to claim travel expenses when they attended partisan fundraisers.

Suspended senator Mike Duffy is facing 31 charges of fraud, bribery and breach of trust, with 18 of them related to travel expenses. In several cases, he was attending Conservative political events.

Duffy's defence lawyer, Donald Bayne, seized on Proulx's claim that such travel was prohibited. He has taken the court through all of the Senate's guidelines, rules, and travel policies multiple times and hadn't come across that edict.

"Where is that clearly set out?" Bayne said.

Proulx explained a colleague told her years ago the Senate's internal economy committee made that decision.

"Where is it written?" Bayne asked.

"It would be a decision. Decisions are in camera, so I would not be able to ... I can't answer that."

Proulx went on to say the policy was communicated to her by a fellow employee and it pre-dated her arrival in the finance office in the late 1990s.

A list of events a senator can or cannot travel to on the public dime was finally created in mid-2012, after the period covered by the criminal charges.

The testimony is another example of the Senate's opaque system of deciding important matters of policy within the confines of its standing committee on internal economy, budgets and administration.

The same committee commissioned an audit of the residency status of all senators in late 2012 or 2013 but is trying to keep it out of the trial.

Also in 2013, the committee asked for legal advice on the constitutional residency requirement of senators. That same committee, controlled by the majority Conservatives, worked to redact a report on Duffy in April 2013 to ensure it didn't include any negative language about his residency status.

Bayne has focused on the Senate administrative rules, the core document that guides operations and policies in the upper chamber. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Filmmaker speaks of 'abundance of caution'

Security is being added for Parvez Sharma, 41, the gay Muslim director of A Sinner in Mecca, following online threats ahead of his film's world premiere at Toronto's Hot Docs Wednesday.

"It's (being done) out of an abundance of caution," said Hot Docs executive director Brett Hendrie. "It's obviously a film that is provocative and high interest, and so we have somebody who will be with Parvez."

"I am a little worried. I don't know what's going to happen tomorrow," said the filmmaker as he left his New York home for Toronto, adding Hot Docs was arranging "a security detail of some sort" in response to his concerns about online hate mail and death threats.

"I expected backlash, but I did not expect it so early," said Sharma, who said he was denounced and had a fatwa imposed on him by "a minor religious figure in South Africa" following the release of his 2007 film A Jihad for Love, which looked at the lives of gay, lesbian and transgender Muslims.

The threats, which don't mention Toronto or Hot Docs, have come in via the film's website and on message boards, which

Muslim director Parvez Sharma's latest film is showing at Toronto's Hot Docs. CONTRIBUTED

"have completely lit up where people are denouncing the film and me," said Sharma. Iranian state media have denounced A Sinner in Mecca as part of a "Western conspiracy" to legitimize the "despicable sin of homosexuality."

"No one has even seen (the film) yet and yet the reaction has been enormous," said Sharma.

In A Sinner in Mecca, Sharma chronicles his hajj, a religious pilgrimage to Mecca in Saudi Arabia, an act of devotion that assures forgiveness for sins. It's a deeply personal film about faith, forgiveness and Sharma's spiritual reconciliation with his late mother, who didn't accept his homosexuality.

"I need to prove that I can be a good Muslim and be gay," Sharma says onscreen as he begins his journey, which includes stops in his birthplace of Saharanpur in northern India.

It was a risky endeavour.

Homosexuals can face death in Saudi Arabia. And Sharma brought two small cameras and an iPhone into holy sites, where it is forbidden to film. He said some of his footage was erased when his camera was confiscated by the mutaween, Islamic religious police.

Only rush seats are available for the world premiere of A Sinner in Mecca on April 29. It screens again April 30 and May 2. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

HIGHLIGHTS FROM THE AUDITOR GENERAL'S REPORT

As always, the spring report of Canada's auditor general, Michael Ferguson, takes issue with many areas of federal responsibility — from health care in First Nations communities, to oversight tax credits. Here five findings from the report, which was released on Tuesday.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

1 First Nations health

Health Canada can't say for sure that all eligible First Nations individuals in remote communities in Manitoba and Ontario can access sufficient clinical and client care services and medical transportation, the report says. Only one of 45 randomly chosen nurses in the First Nations communities had completed all five of Health Canada's mandatory training courses. Not all nursing stations in the communities meet health and safety requirements or building codes. In one case, a nursing station residence had been unusable for more than two years because of a broken septic system.

2 Drug-resistant infections

The report says the Public Health Agency of Canada has failed to mobilize its federal, provincial and territorial counterparts in developing a national strategy to deal with so-called antimicrobial resistance. Ferguson's audit found that the agency collects only limited information on drug-resistant infections at clinics and long-term care facilities, and lacks details about the extent of the problem in remote areas and among vulnerable members of the population.

3 Missing cost projections

Finance Department reports do not include future cost projections on a wide suite of tax benefits that MPs ought to be able to take into account when they debate budgets and public spending, according to the report by Ferguson, seen at left. The auditor says overall projections are available for measures such as the children's fitness tax credit, the first-time home buyers credit and the age credit, but that is not the same as tracking the actual amount of dollars being lost.

5 Defence spending oversight

The report says that between 2009 and 2013, the Office of the Ombudsman at the Department of National Defence was poorly managed and overseen. Former ombudsman Pierre Daigle, pictured below, routinely approved his own hospitality expense claims and ignored contracting rules. Daigle, who was replaced in 2012, regularly ran afoul the department's values and ethics code, leading to staff grievances, complaints, high levels of sick leave and turnover. National Defence failed to investigate adequately or take action.

Reimagining the Sir John A. Macdonald Parkway corridor as a signature riverfront linear park is one of the National Capital Commission's (NCC) priorities. The overall concept for the linear park is consistent with the NCC's vision of putting the "park" back into the "parkway." The purpose of this second public workshop is to present the overall draft concept plan for the Sir John A. Macdonald linear park, as well as draft concepts for the individual park sectors.

The public is invited to review the proposed concepts, and provide their ideas and comments. We will also be seeking feedback on the priorities for the next five years.

4 Late parole release

Lower-risk offenders are being released from prison later in their sentences and with less time supervised in the community because Correctional Service Canada recommends early release less often, the report found. Some 80 per cent of offenders were behind bars beyond their first parole eligibility date, while more offenders are being released directly from medium- and high-security penitentiaries.

Accused of striking Hollywood star with car, paparazzo set free

VANCOUVER

Judge orders photographer to keep clear of Ryan Reynolds

A Vancouver-area celebrity photographer accused of striking Ryan Reynolds with a car has been ordered by a judge to keep clear of the actor as he continues filming his latest movie.

Richard Fedyck, 52, made his first court appearance Tuesday on serious new charges for alleged criminal harassment of Reynolds over a six-week period before the confrontation in a hotel parkade.

After a joint submission by his defence lawyer and the Crown, Fedyck was released with conditions. Details cannot be released because of a mandatory publication ban.

Provincial court Judge Maria Giardini interrupted the Crown lawyer as she launched into a basic outline of the case.

"I know who Ryan Reynolds is," Giardini said with a chuckle.

Fedyck stood with his hands in the pockets of his dark suit during the brief appearance. His lawyer Jonathan Waddington refused to comment.

The paparazzo was arrested two days after Reynolds was allegedly struck in the secure parking lot of the Shangri-La

Hotel at about 7 p.m. on April 10.

Court documents show Fedyck is charged with criminal harassment, dangerous operation of a motor vehicle and assault with a weapon — his car.

The indictment says Fedyck is accused of causing Reynolds to "reasonably fear for his safety" between Feb. 28 and April 11.

He has denied hitting the Vancouver-born actor, calling the accusation "100-per-cent false."

Giardini agreed to the photographer's release on his own recognition and $1,000 bail.

Fedyck's conditions include not contacting Reynolds or his wife, daughter or mother. He must avoid movie shoots, studios or residences where the actor may be and is banned from taking photos of him or his family.

The conditions, which also stipulate Fedyck can't enter Vancouver except for court hearings, are in place until June 5, the judge ordered.

Fedyck's next appearance is scheduled for May 5.

Fedyck has butted heads with celebrities before. He filed a lawsuit claiming verbal and physical assault by Pamela Anderson and Denise Richards during a film shoot in Richmond, B.C., in 2007. The suit was later dropped.

CANADA REVENUE AGENCY

Income tax filing extended

Canadians are getting more time to file and pay their taxes due to a mistake by the Canada Revenue Agency.

The deadline for most Canadians was set for the end of April.

However, a spokesman for Revenue Minister Kerry-Lynne Findlay said that, due to a human error, a notification was sent last week to tax preparers indicating the deadline was May 5.

Canadians now have until May 5 to file their income tax return and pay any amounts they owe for 2014.

The deadline for returns for the self-employed and their spouses or common-law partners remains June 15.

Missing the tax filing deadline triggers penalties on any amounts owed to the CRA, as well as interest on the outstanding balance.

The Quebec government announced later on Tuesday that it too is extending its deadline to May 5.

Tweet deal for Harper, Obama

Plenty of diplomatic deals get done on the margins of global get-togethers, but one conducted on Twitter in 2014 made Prime Minister Stephen Harper a digital star among his fellow world leaders.

Harper's trash-talking tweet to U.S. President Barack Obama about the men's and women's hockey finals at the Sochi Olympics was among the most retweeted missives from world leaders last year, according to the annual Twiplomacy study of online activities of global politicians.

The message — "Like I said, #teamusa is good but #wearewinter. @BarackObama, I look forward to my two cases of beer. #CANvsUSA #Sochi2014" — was forwarded more than 23,000 times.

Twitter is becoming an essential tool of 21st-century statecraft, the study says, both in terms of public diplomacy and public engagement.

In 2014, Canada was part of a co-ordinated campaign led by the U.S. State Department to use the hashtag #UnitedforUkraine in order to register official unease over Russia's actions there.

Not to be outdone, the study noted, the Russian government started using the hashtag as well to provide its point of view.

"Of course, hashtags alone will not bring back the girls from captivity in Nigeria or bring peace to Ukraine," the study said.

"However, they serve as a powerful rallying cry on specific issues and causes, and help give them international recognition as a trending topic on Twitter." THE CANADIAN PRESS

REMEMBRANCE DAY

Holiday bill unlikely to pass

An NDP private member's bill meant to formally recognize Remembrance Day as a "legal" holiday appears to be dying a slow, silent death as the sun begins to set on the current session of Parliament.

The Harper government recently asked for more time to study the straightforward, single-clause bill, which comes before a second House of Commons committee Tuesday.

Ontario New Democrat MP Dan Harris, who introduced the proposed legislation, says it's highly unlikely the bill will make it through the House of Commons and the Senate before summer, when Parliament adjourns prior to a fall election.

"It certainly seems like they've hit the brakes hard on this bill," said Harris, who accused Conservatives of tying it up by asking the veterans affairs committee to study the matter after it had already been reviewed.

"They seem to be doing everything they can to stop it."

The committee will hear witnesses Tuesday, the vast majority of whom have already testified before the other all-party committee of MPs.

"By throwing it over to veterans affairs, they've ensured at least another week's delay."

The Royal Canadian Legion opposes the legislation, fearing diminished turnout at Nov. 11 commemorations and fewer opportunities to educate young people.

Harris said since provincial law was changed in Nova Scotia and businesses were told to observe the day, attendance at Remembrance Day services has actually increased.

Guilty plea in burning of homeless woman

A man accused of attacking a homeless woman and setting her on fire in northern Saskatchewan has pleaded guilty to attempted murder.

Leslie Black, 29, entered the plea Tuesday in a Prince Albert courtroom.

A judge ordered the man to undergo a psychiatric assessment and he was remanded in custody until June 26.

Marlene Bird was found badly injured in a parking lot outside a community centre in the city's downtown on June 1, 2014.

The 57-year-old was so badly burned in the attack that doctors were forced to amputate both her legs. She also had several surgeries for skin grafts.

There was an outpouring of support for Bird nationally and internationally and a local shelter set up a trust fund to help cover medical expenses along with rehabilitation costs.

Bird later moved into a home with her long-time partner, who helped her adjust to her new life in a wheelchair.

Police initially charged Black with aggravated sexual assault.

A publication ban on Bird's name was lifted after her family argued that she didn't want to be "just another statistic."

The Crown told court that the sexual assault charge will be dropped. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eleven years after Delores Dawn Brower was last seen hitching a ride on 118 Avenue in Edmonton, Alta. RCMP confirmed Tuesday that the remains found south of the city are hers.

Edmonton's medical examiner was able to identify the 33-year-old woman, who worked in the city's sex trade when she disappeared, through dental records. The examiner has been unable to determine Brower's cause of death but tests are ongoing.

On April 19, a property owner found parts of Brower's skull just east of Leduc, Alta. near Rollyview community, prompting a police investigation.

It is third time human remains have been discovered in an eight kilometre radius of one another. The skeletal remains of Katie Sylvia Ballantyne, also an Edmonton sex-trade worker, were discovered in the same region in July 2003. In 2012, the remains of 20-year-old Amber Tuccaro were found.

Insp. Stacey Talbot said RCMP is investigating the possibility that the area could be a "dumping ground" for bodies.

Described as Métis, Brower was known on the street as Spider and had been canvassed by RCMP's Project Kare, a provincial task force formed in 2003 to investigate missing or murdered sex workers. The RCMP Historical Homicide Unit is now leading the investigation.

Brower's family released a statement urging people to contact police if they had information about the homicide.

"While we are saddened to have confirmation that Delores' remains have been found, there is a sense of thankfulness as well. We loved Delores and are grateful to have some closure."

COURT DEL MASTRO SAYS HE'S PAID 'EXCEPTIONALLY HEAVY PRICE' FOR OFFENCES

Former Conservative MP Dean Del Mastro leaves court on Tuesday at his sentencing hearing in Lindsay, Ont. Del Mastro choked back tears as he described the "nation-wide condemnation" he's had to endure as his election overspending trial wound its way through the legal system. Crown prosecutors are seeking a sentence of nine to 12 months in jail, saying only imprisonment will truly drive home the gravity of Del Mastro's offences. But Del Mastro addressed the Crown's stance in his appeal to the judge. "They have failed to acknowledge the exceptionally heavy price that I have already had to pay," he said. The former Conservative MP was found guilty last fall of violating the Canada Elections Act. Del Mastro's sentence is expected to be delivered on June 26.

Winnipeg police have charged the man that they initially identified as a person of interest in the deaths of two homeless men in the downtown area last weekend, as well as that of a third man found beaten to death in a bus shack earlier in April.

But Winnipeg Police Service Superintendent Danny Smyth stopped short of calling the man a serial killer Tuesday.

"I don't know if there's a definition for a serial killer," said Smyth after announcing the arrest in the cases that have left Winnipeg's homeless community on edge and garnered national media attention. "But certainly three murders is significant."

John Paul Ostamas, 40, was charged with two counts of first-degree murder and one count of second-degree murder Monday.

Police allege Ostamas attacked and killed Donald Collins, 65, in downtown Winnipeg Friday night, and then killed 48-year-old Stony Bushie after the two met several hours later at a parkade near the same corner.

The second-degree murder charges are connected to the death of Myles Monias, 37, who was found beaten to death in a bus shelter downtown April 10.

Smyth said Ostamas, who is originally from the Thunder Bay, Ont. area and has lived in and out of Winnipeg for the last decade, is "very transient" and knew both men he's ac-

Governor vows to prevent another round of rioting

Baltimore was a city on edge Tuesday as hundreds of National Guardsmen patrolled the streets against unrest for the first time since 1968, hoping to prevent another outbreak of rioting.

Maryland's governor said 2,000 Guardsmen and 1,000 law officers would be in place overnight to try to prevent a repeat of the unrest that erupted Monday in some of the city's poorest neighbourhoods and sent a shudder through all of Baltimore.

"This combined force will not tolerate violence or looting," Gov. Larry Hogan warned.

In a measure of how tense things were, the city was under a 10 p.m.-to-5 a.m. emergency curfew. All public schools were closed. And the Baltimore Orioles cancelled Tuesday night's game at Camden Yards and—in what may be a first in baseball's 145-year history—announced that Wednesday's game will be closed to the public.

The streets were largely calm all morning and into the evening. But police with riot shields lined up shoulder to shoulder and kept close watch over a growing, chanting crowd of about 1,000 people at the corner where some of the worst violence took place the night before.

It brought a tear to my eye. Seeing it doesn't feel like the city that I love ... I am glad they're here, but it's hard to watch.

Resident Jascy Jones about the sight of National Guardsmen on the street

The real test was expected after dark, with the start of the curfew.

Political leaders and residents called the violence a tragedy for the city and lamented the damage done by the rioters to their own neighbourhoods.

"The same community they say they care about, they're destroying. You can't have it both ways," Mayor Stephanie Rawlings-Blake said.

Baltimore Police Commissioner Anthony Batts said: "I had officers come up to me and Political leaders and residents called the violence a tragedy for the city and lamented the damage done by the rioters to their own neighbourhoods.

"The same community they say they care about, they're destroying. You can't have it both ways," Mayor Stephanie Rawlings-Blake said.

"We're helping the neighbourhood build back up," she said. "This is an encouragement to them to know the rest of the city is not just looking on and say, 'I was born and raised in this city. This makes me cry.'

But the rioting also brought out a sense of civic pride and responsibility among many Baltimore residents, with hundreds of volunteers turning out to sweep the streets of glass and other debris with brooms and trash bags donated by hardware stores.

Blanca Tapahuasco brought her three sons, ages 2 to 8, from another part of the city to help clean up the brick-and-pavement courtyard outside a looted CVS pharmacy in the hard-hit neighbourhood where Gray was arrested.

"When I got home, there was nothing," said Thapa, an army soldier. "Everything was broken. My wife—she was dead."

He was put on leave from his army unit to mourn, one of the few Nepalese soldiers not deployed in the country's massive rescue and recovery operation.

But instead of sadness, there is anger.

helping me. But we get nothing from the government," Thapa said.

An official came, took some pictures and left—without delivering anything to the village of about 300 people north of the capital of Kathmandu, he said.

Paslang is only three kilometres up the mountain from the town of Gorkha, the district headquarters and staging area for rescue and aid operations. But the villagers, who have no idea when they might get help, are still sleeping together in the mud and sharing whatever scraps of food they can pull from beneath their ruined buildings. Three in the hamlet have died.

Officials and foreign aid workers who have rushed to Nepal following the magnitude 7.8 earthquake are struggling against stormy weather, poor roads and a shortage of manpower and funds to get assistance to the needy. On Tuesday, the district managed to co-ordinate 26 helicopter trips to remote villages to evacuate 30 injured people before a major downpour halted the effort.

"We need 15,000 plastic tarps alone. We cannot buy that number," said Mohan Pokhara, a district disaster management committee member.

Only 50 volunteer army and police officers are distributing food and aid for thousands in the immediate vicinity, he said.

Some in Paslang have seen sacks of food being flown by helicopter to remote regions reachable only by air, without stopping. The arrival in the village of a diesel generator Tuesday, brought by "a nice charity man" from a foreign aid group that no one could identify, brought moments of much-needed elation as dozens crowded around to charge their cellphones on four attached power sockets.

Sitting in the mud and sharing tea made over an open fire with his wife and children, Tilak Bahadur Rana, a farmer, confessed he was losing heart.

"Because of this earthquake, the whole village is destroyed. We need food. We need a place to sleep, or compensation for all we have lost," he said.

Zoos begin to realize they're not best place for elephants

UNITED STATES

Activists claim animals don't get space they need to thrive

Visitors flocked to the leafy enclosure at Seattle's zoo to watch the two elephants, Chai and Bamboo, as they used their long trunks to play with balls and snack on carrots and apples.

The elephants would sometimes exhibit other behaviour. Chai would pace from side to side and bob her head up and down — a sign, animal activists say, of the stress of being confined inside the one-acre area.

It is common behaviour, and a growing number of people feel the giant animals — hard-wired to roam free across thousands of square miles in Africa and Asia — don't have a place in American zoos.

Seattle's Woodland Park Zoo recently made the difficult and controversial decision to close its popular elephant exhibit and move Chai and Bamboo to a larger zoo in Oklahoma so they can join a larger herd.

Others, like the Bronx Zoo in New York City, say they are moving in the same direction.

The question is: Are we going to share the earth with elephants? ... Sadly, I am pessimistic.

but will wait until one or more of their existing herd dies. And zoos like Detroit have already retired their pachyderms to one of two U.S. animal refuges.

Many zoos say they can't give elephants the space they need. Elephants are also social animals that prefer to live in a herd, but that is hard to provide as their numbers dwindle, both in captivity and in the wild.

At the same time, national guidelines adopted in 2011 would require some zoos to close their elephant programs by 2017 if they cannot increase their herds and expand their facilities.

Some North American zoos have as few as one elephant, said Rob Vernon, spokesman for the Association of Zoos & Aquariums, which drew up the guidelines. The new rules encourage a herd of at least three elephants.

Woodland Park Zoo, which has had elephants in its care since 1921, started discussing the future of its herd after a third pachyderm died in 2014.

A community task force recommended in 2013 that the zoo bring in more elephants and expand its facilities, but zoo President and CEO Deborah Jensen said those goals were not achievable, in part because it's so difficult to obtain new elephants.

In the end, Seattle decided their best choice was Oklahoma, where 36-year-old Chai and 48-year-old Bamboo may become the old "aunties" of the herd, Jensen said.

Activists who protested Seattle's decision believe the right place for older elephants to "retire" is at one of the nation's two sanctuaries, in California or Tennessee.

Toni Frohoff, director of In Defence of Animals' elephant campaign, said the Seattle zoo could have made a worse

BACKGROUND

As of December 2014, there were 159 African elephants at 39 North American zoos and 139 Asian elephants at 34 zoos in the U.S. and Canada, according to the Maryland-based Association of Zoos & Aquariums. The group In Defence of Animals says 21 zoos in North America have closed their elephant exhibits since 1991.

choice than Oklahoma, but she thinks the best choice would have been a sanctuary.

Chai and Bamboo are currently in San Diego, where they were temporarily rerouted because of bad weather on their way to Oklahoma.

There's very little consensus — even among animal experts — about what is the right choice to make for the elephants currently in American zoos. Bringing more Asian or African elephants to this country no longer seems feasible, and breeding programs have been minimally successful.

Officials in Seattle, which was forced into court over its decision to move its elephants to Oklahoma, say they did what they thought would be best.

Jensen was frustrated with the intense focus on Seattle's decision. "The question is: Are we going to share the earth with elephants?" she asked, noting that African elephants are being killed at the rate of 96 a day or 30,000 a year, for their ivory. PEER-TO-PEER LENDING

U.S. lender OnDeck expands to Canada

OnDeck Capital, a U.S.-based online marketplace where small businesses can secure loans, is expanding its offerings in Canada, joining a growing number of technology-oriented lenders that promise to transform the financial services landscape.

Experts say Canada has been slow to embrace peer-to-peer lending, a burgeoning industry that provides consumers and small business owners an alternative to the banks by pairing them with institutional investors and wealthy individuals willing to lend them cash.

The concept is gaining popularity south of the border, as well as in parts of Europe and in China.

"Innovations often take longer to arrive here," says Andrew

Graham, the chief executive of Toronto-based Borrowell, an online platform launched a month ago that allows consumers to borrow money at rates ranging from 5.9 to 18 per cent.

After an initial trial period where it offered small loans — $50,000 or less — to Canadian firms, OnDeck has set its sights on expanding north of the border, joining a handful of homegrown startups including Fundthrough, which lends to small businesses, and Grouplend and Borrowell, serving consumers.

OnDeck, which has delivered over $2 billion in loans since 2007, will now be offering loans of up to $150,000 to Canadian companies.

China beats France in vineyard space

China now boasts more land dedicated to winemaking vineyards than France, as it tries to satisfy a rapid rise in local demand.

China's vineyards grew to 800,000 hectares last year, putting it behind No. 1 grower Spain but ahead of France.

Because its production is less effective than more established winemaking countries, China's output is only the seventh-biggest, according to figures released Monday by the Paris-based International Organization of Vine and Wine.

France took over the title of top producer from Italy last year, with 46.7 million hectolitres, or 6.2 billion bottles. EU countries have intentionally reduced vineyards in recent years to make them more efficient and improve quality.

THE STRONG MUSEUM Finalists include Pong, Angry Birds, Minecraft

Fifteen video games that have engrossed gamers for untold hours were named finalists Tuesday for the new World Video Game Hall of Fame.

The list includes arcade trailblazers Pong and Space Invaders, smartphone favourites Angry Birds and Minecraft and an array of others for console and computer.

Only a handful will make up the hall of fame's inaugural class, to be chosen by an international selection committee of journalists, scholars and other video game experts.

The induction ceremony is scheduled for June 4 inside The Strong museum in Rochester, N.Y., which also houses the National Toy Hall of Fame.

"The 15 finalists for the World Video Game Hall of Fame span decades, gaming platforms and geographies," said Jon-Paul Dyson, director of the museum's International Center for the History of Electronic Games. "Whether it's the groundbreaking game Pong or a more recent viral sensation like Minecraft, all of these games have helped shape the way that people across the globe play and relate to one another."

To make it into the hall of fame, games must have icon status, prove to be more than a passing fad and leave a mark on other games or forms of entertainment, pop culture or society in general.

The Strong said it received thousands of nominations since February, when it announced creation of the video game hall to recognize the impact of electronic games through the years. Anyone can nominate a game online.

PRO|CON METRO EXAMINES BOTH SIDES OF THE CANADA POST CONTROVERSY

Are community mailboxes good for community?

NO: They'll destroy the fabric of our great country

Boxes are not always installed with municipal approval or co-ordination (which prompted a court challenge this week from the City of Hamilton against Canada Post). A big, ugly metal superbox on or near your home can lower property values. Canada Post's refusal to add recycling bins will inevitably lead to more litter as not everyone will bother to lug home their junk mail. As our already brutal winters become increasingly more freakish, walking or driving to get essential documents will become dangerous or impossible for many. The keys don't always work. And for those with mobility issues, we wish you luck as you navigate the bureaucratic rigamarole of proving you deserve special dispensation for home delivery once a week.

YES: But only if we use imagination and planning...

The visionary view is that random encounters — and increased interactions as people gather to collect their mail — could improve quality of life for many. But this happy scenario will require more than just dumping a metal box on the edge of a lonely road. Imagine if beautifully designed mailboxes were incorporated into a local café or community centre — a destination you could walk or drive to with a friend, where you could have a cuppa and gossip about the day's news, check out community events on a notice board, or cruise the Internet. Early humankind gathered around a communal fire not just for warmth, but for much-needed human contact. Wouldn't it be wonderful if community mailboxes could resurrect that kind of ritual?

"Asking advertisers to stop exploiting our insecurities is naive"

Protein World just wanted to sell some diet pills.

Instead, the company has raised women's ire over a sexed-up ad campaign on the London Underground featuring a bikini-clad woman.

"The image features bold writing asking commuters 'Are you beach body ready?' when it might as well say 'Do you feel rubbish yet?'" wrote protester Tara Costello.

Women are defacing the ads. There's a "taking back the beach" rally planned and a petition to get the ads removed, which the transit authority is sidestepping since the ads are set to come down today.

Stop trying to make us feel bad, the protesters are demanding. Fat chance.

"That's what advertising does," said Jacqueline Lambiase, professor at Texas Christian University, who's been researching sex and women in the media for 25 years.

Advertising preys on our emotions, an idea, Lambiase noted, that goes back to Aristotle, and manipulates our insecurities, a tactic devised in the early 1900s to sell mouthwash and used ever since.

Asking advertisers to stop creating insecurities and exploiting existing ones is naive.

Even companies that seem to be selling an enlightened view of women — Always' #LikeAGirl Super Bowl ad and Dove's #choosebeautiful campaign — have one basic goal, and it's not boosting your female empowerment. It's getting your money.

"I'm pretty skeptical about those kinds of attempts," Lambiase told me. "Brands are only trying to sell themselves. They can't really do anything else in the world."

If you want to praise Dove's #choosebeautiful campaign (which has appeared in this newspaper and tells women: "Beautiful is a choice. One you make every single day"), praise it on the only measure it deserves: sales figures.

Yes, we should still fight the worst offenders, even when it raises their profile (as the backlash has for Protein World). It's well known that ads can negatively impact self-esteem and body image.

But, as Lambiase argued, we also need to boost our resilience against these messages through better media literacy, especially in an age of heightened sexualization, where what was considered pornography in the 1960s is now fair game for advertisers.

There is no healthy image of womanhood, or personhood, in an industry that only sees consumers. There are no allies in the advertising business, and you can't bully Victoria's Secret into doing anything less than making you feel incomplete without their bras.

The key isn't to ask advertisers to sell us a nicer story. It's to stop listening.

Satire fails, if it serves only the privileged

SOCIAL DISCOURSE

Omar Mouallem

I never thought I'd hold the PEN American Center's Freedom of Expression Courage awards and Adam Sandler in the same thought. But events this week brought their worlds closer together after both were boycotted over racial stereotyping.

The PEN honoree, Charlie Hebdo magazine, mocked underprivileged minorities, according to six esteemed authors boycotting the ceremony. Sandler's in-production movie, The Ridiculous 6, flagrantly dismissed the advice of its Native American cultural consultants and extras until they walked off the set.

Satire isn't supposed to be sacred, which is the very thing that makes it sacred. It shows deference to no one. But it can also cross a line and become a way for the empowered to bully the disempowered.

In recent years, similar criticisms have been thrown at 2 Broke Girls' asexual Asian workhorse tropes, The New Yorker's "fist bump" cover featuring a turbanned Obama with wife Michelle as a gun-toting revolutionary, and Tina Fey's new comedy Unbreakable Kimmy Schmidt — for, among other things, a weird subplot featuring Polish-American actor Jane Krakowski's character as Native American.

Some of these criticisms are valid, others misconstrued. Together they indicate growing empathy for oppressed groups. But does the frequency of these criticisms mean audiences are becoming more sophisticated, or oversensitive?

Certainly it's become much harder to get away with casual racism since the 1990s, when Sandler teased gays, Asians, women and his own Jewish clan with equal opportunity. But there's something deeply disturbing about The Ridiculous 6. One scene shows an indigenous woman falling down drunk before being roused by white men pouring liquor on her.

Are audiences becoming more sophisticated? Or oversensitive?

Netflix, producers of The Ridiculous 6, defended Sandler: "It is a broad satire of Western movies and the stereotypes they popularized, featuring a diverse cast that is not only part of — but in on — the joke." Call me skeptical but, when actors from a group that, according to one study, gets an average of 196.5 seconds of screen time per appearance, are involved, I doubt they were in on anything.

Growing up, I rarely saw an Arab depicted in comedy who wasn't a sex-crazed sheik, muted and submissive harem slave or violent radical. Even as a child I recognized it as cruel and hurtful. Charlie Hebdo has shown these portrayals are as prevalent and problematic as ever, but also that excessive sensitivity can be more damaging.

Satire isn't an exact science. That's why it's art. But even the lowest-brow art is best when it challenges the audience's expectations — if not for the sake of social commentary, then just because upending clichés makes for better entertainment. When comedy instead supports ridicule, it only serves the privileged.

Beer: It's not just for BBQs

FOOD AND DRINK

Picking the right brew can take your meal to the next level

Food lovers need not turn to wine and cocktails when they want to enjoy a meal.

Metro talked to Toronto-based brew specialist Mirella Amato and Elyse Carlucci of Blue Point Brewing Company in the U.S. about how to best pair beer with different dishes.

"I've come up with a two-step system that will yield a decent pairing. It might yield a delicious pairing, but it will certainly yield a solid one," said Amato.

The first step is intensity. Both Amato and Carlucci say you want to match the intensity of your beer with the intensity of the dish you intend to pair it with.

"If I have a light salad and I pair that with a really roasty, full-bodied, Russian imperial stout, I'm not going to be able to taste my salad," says Amato, author of Beerology: Everything You Need to Know to Enjoy Beer ... Even More, which includes a chapter on beer pairings.

"If I have a thick stew with vegetables and spices and meat and I pair that with a light lager, the flavour of the lager will be completely lost."

Amato says the second step is not in any of the literature she's read — it's more of an insider tip.

"Line up the colour intensity of your beer with the colour intensity of the main ingredient of your dish."

Carlucci says while you can do contrast pairings, they are difficult for novices to pull off.

She does, however, recommend contrast pairings for newbies in one situation: "If you're looking to cool down the heat in a really spicy dish, contrast it with wheat beers, like white styles or pilsners. That's the only time where a contrast for novices might be a good thing."

Here, Amato and Carlucci share some of their favourite pairings for different foods. A list of Canadian options provided by Amato is included at the end of each category.

Bier Markt's Merchant Burger is paired with a Red Racer by Central City Brewing at their King Street location in Toronto. Beer expert Mirella Amato says British-style pale ales have a complexity of flavours that go really well with a burger. LIZ BEDDALL/METRO

Fish: Amato and Carlucci agree that wheat beers are a safe bet for most fish dishes.

"Belgian-style wheat beers have orange peel and coriander and that yields citrus flavours, which of course go great with fish," says Amato.

"There's also no bitterness, which can sometimes combine with an oilier fish to give a slightly unpleasant taste."

Examples:

- Mill Street's Belgian Wit (Ontario)
- Garrison's Nit Wit (Nova Scotia)
- Driftwood Brewery's White Bark (British Columbia)

Chicken or pork: "You can go with a more traditional lager style," says Carlucci of medium-bodied proteins.

"Stick with medium intensity beers that have more flavour, but not a lot of hops."

Carlucci suggests Blue Point Toasted Lager and Anchor Brewing Breckle's Brown.

Amato takes it back to her colour principle.

"If you are looking to pair beer with chicken or white fish, you want to go with a gold to pale amber beer. If you're getting into salmon, pork, lentils, you want a deeper amber beer."

Examples:

- Golden lager, like Tree Brewing's Beach Blonde (British Columbia)
- Golden ale, like Boréale Blonde (Quebec)
- Kolsch-style ale, like Beau's Lug-Tread Lagered Ale (Ontario)
- Märzen, like Paddock Wood's Red Hammer (Saskatchewan)
- Bock, like Hoyne The Big Bock (British Columbia)
- American-style pale ale, like Great Lakes Canuck

Pale Ale (Ontario)

- Saison, like Hopfenstark's Saison Station 16 (Quebec)

Classic burger:

"I enjoy my burgers with either a British style pale ale or a British style brown ale. That brown colour lines up nicely with the meat. And of course, with burger, it's extremely rare that you're going to have it plain — there's a lot of flavours there and British-style ales have a complexity of flavours," says Amato.

Examples:

- Picaroons Best Bitter (New Brunswick)
- Central City Brewers Red Racer (British Columbia)
- Black Oak's Nut Brown Ale (Ontario)

Veggie Curry: "If you are eating a curry vegetarian dish, try the Blue Point Mosaic Session IPA or Firestone Walker Pivo Hoppy Pilsner," says Carlucci. "Both have aromatic hops, but not the bitter taste you might expect from IPA styles."

For something like a Thai-style veggie curry, Amato says a triple works well. "You want a beer with enough carbonation to cut through the richness and maybe a bit of bitterness as well."

Example:

- Unibroue's La Fin Du Monde (Quebec)

Desserts: Pairing beer with desserts all depends on what you're serving.

"If you like more fruity desserts, there are some really good fruit lambics out there and that's a great style for someone who likes fruitier cocktails or has a sweeter palate," says Carlucci.

"There are a lot of great beers out there that have fruit undertones."

As for heavier desserts like a dark chocolate mousse, Amato says you can go two ways.

"A really intensely fruity fruit beer is delightful because then you get the chocolate and fruit thing."

She also recommends a Barley wine, "a really thick, chewy beer — it has got a roundness to it, which mirrors the mousse nicely, but it also has a higher alcohol content to cut through the richness."

Examples:

- Mill Street's Barley Wine (Ontario)
  - Garrison Ol' Fog Burner (Nova Scotia)
  - Central City Brewing's Thor's Hammer Barley Wine (British Columbia)
- Amsterdam's Framboise (Ontario)
- St Ambroise's Framboise (Quebec)

MARITIME TREAT

Lobster best enjoyed in casual setting, chef says

For many Canadians, lobster is a dress-up, special-occasion food eaten at a fancy restaurant.

"But it should be the total opposite," says Alain Bosse, a.k.a. The Kilted Chef, of Pictou County, N.S.

"You should be dressing down and eating it at your picnic table."

The food consultant and "ambassador of all things culinary in Atlantic Canada" says the Maritimes "have the best lobster in the world."

"We have the most pristine water and because of our cold climate, our shells are harder and meatier. We end up with a good, hard-shelled quality lobster that's full of meat, versus a soft-shell lobster that's moulting," he says.

"And we sell more lobster than anywhere else in the world, Maine included."

The Halifax-based Lobster Council of Canada's executive director, Geoff Irvine, confirms Canada provides more than half the world's supply of live and processed hard-shell Atlantic lobster, with an export value last year of $1.5 billion.

The industry is highly regulated, Irvine says.

The Atlantic Coast (there's no lobster on the West Coast) is divided into 41 "lobster fishery areas" (LFAs), each with its own "season" — a starting and finishing date. Fishers are licensed for specific areas. May and December are peak production times, but at least one LFA is in operation in any given month.

These staggered seasons encourage sustainability but also protect summer moults. Lobsters shed their shells to grow and are at their best when the new shells have hardened and are full of meat.

About 40 per cent of the lobster catch is delivered live to customers and 60 per cent is processed into "literally hundreds of products," Irvine says.

Despite accessibility to fresh lobster, Bosse still calls it a "wonderful treat." But that accessibility may explain a more casual approach to a lobster dinner in the Maritimes, including roadside "pounds" where the only accompaniments may be a paper plate and plastic utensils.

"Typically in Atlantic Canada, we eat lobster cold, dipped in hot butter," he says. "And we always eat it either with french fries, potato salad or french bread."

• If unfamiliar with the crustacean, a great way to start is to buy it — raw or cooked — already fully or partly removed from the shell. That eliminates the issues of dropping live lobsters into boiling water to cook and of wresting the meat out of the full shell.

• Overcooking is probably the most common mistake, Bosse says. A 625-gram (1.25-pound) raw lobster "takes about 12

WINE Chard helps seafood sing

LIQUID ASSETS

Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy

When I began my journey down the long and winding wine road, learning more about what I was drinking, other than what was written on the back of the bottle, was a struggle. With no Internet, meeting winemakers face-to-face was the only way to get an insider's peek under a winery's tent.

A recent tasting with Margo Van Staaveren, the longtime winemaker at California's Chateau St Jean, reminded me that it's still hard to beat that kind of interaction.

Founded in 1973, St Jean has been a Golden State pioneer when it comes to wines produced from specific vineyards.

While Van Staaveren creates plenty of liquid magic from those individual plots, her straightforward Chateau

St Jean 2012 Sonoma County Chardonnay ($18.95-$19.99) represents her efforts equally as well.

Like me, she's an unabashed Chardonnay fan and the soft, tropical fruit and balanced, buttery oak influence in this chard tastes as good on its own as it does with rich seafood and dishes dominated by springtime veggies. ## VERSATILE INGREDIENT

Go with the season, spring a leek

WORD OF MOUTH

Theresa Albert
myfriendinfood.com

One of the first greens to pop up in the spring are wild leeks. Foraging for food is a hipster renewal of ancient skills and I like the reinforcement of the idea that food comes from the earth, not the grocer.

Head to forested areas where trees have dropped their leaves to a brown and thawed ground. For about three to four weeks after the frost has passed the only thing green will be clusters of dagger-like leaves about three inches tall and solid green with a red and white stem. Pull one or two to find a white bulb that smells distinctly like onion and you have hit pay dirt! Don't overharvest; leave half of each cluster to proliferate next season.

OK, so you don't want to forage but you do want to find leeks at the grocery store. The commercial variety has a thick, hardy stalk of stacked circular layers. The pale part is edible but the tops are too tough and can only be used in making stock.

Leeks have a milder, sweeter taste than onion and a much prettier presentation. Nutritionally, they are about the same with the exception that leeks have slightly less sugar and much more Vitamin A.

Some creative ways to use leeks, beyond the traditional leek and potato soup, include:

• Sauté an entire pan in butter and freeze in ice cube trays.

• Spread onto warm baguette and top with goat's cheese.

• Use as a base for quick sauces or soups.

• Blend with herbs and Greek yogurt for a great dip.

• Slice lengthwise and rinse well. Store in vinegar with salt in glass jars in the fridge for 2-4 hours to "pickle".

Serve with sandwiches and keep refrigerated for up to two weeks.

French stars sign on for Dolan film

XAVIER DOLAN

Director's latest tells story of man announcing his pending death

Production is set to begin next month on Xavier Dolan's next film, a French-language feature starring Marion Cotillard, Léa Seydoux and Vincent Cassel.

Dolan says he's thrilled to work with such "inspiring talent" on It's Only the End of the World (Juste La Fin Du Monde). The Canada-France co-production also stars Nathalie Baye and Gaspard Ulliel.

The film is based on a play by Jean-Luc Lagarce of the same name.

It centres on a writer who returns to his hometown, planning to announce his upcoming death to his family.

Dolan says he was introduced to the play many years ago by muse Anne Dorval, whose Dolan credits include Mommy and I Killed My Mother.

The Quebec writer/director says he will shoot the film in late May before starting on his first English-language project, The Life and Death of John F. Donovan, starring Kit Harington and Jessica Chastain.

Dolan says he hopes It's Only the End of the World could bridge the genre chasm between his mother-son drama Mommy and John F.

"It's the second time I'm adapting a play and I have to admit that so far, for me, novels and plays have been the regal road to screenwriting," Dolan said in a release.

"I love adaptations and they challenge me in a different way. It's humbling to translate someone's world, someone's intimate creation to the screen."

In Hollywood

Now that you've recovered from the sudden death of Patrick Dempsey's Grey's Anatomy character, it's time to dig into exactly why McDreamy had to go and slip this mortal TV coil.

"Shonda (Rhimes) had no other choice but to fire Patrick. He had been showing up late and was holding up production because he couldn't remember his lines," a source tells Radar Online.

"Shonda shouldn't be blamed. This is on Patrick and no one else."

And apparently Rhimes gave Dempsey a chance to fix his behaviour, but he didn't take it.

A British soap star you've probably never heard of,

You're never really dead on The X-Files

INTERVIEW WITH CREATOR

The Smoking Man is back but don't expect a Mulder and Scully sex scene

X-Files creator Chris Carter returns to Vancouver to shoot a new batch of his sci-fi tales, picking up eight years after we last saw paranormal experts Fox Mulder and Dana Scully.

In addition to stars David Duchovny and Gillian Anderson, Carter says fans can expect Mitch Pileggi to return as Walter Skinner and William B. Davis as "The Smoking Man," even though that character was killed off.

"As we say in The X-Files, even though you're dead, you're never really dead," says Carter, adding there's "a big chance" the Lone Gunmen will also return.

Carter is at a Vancouver International Film Festival industry reception Wednesday in honour of National Canadian Film Day. He talked about how things will play out in the new episodes.

What will we see in these six new episodes? Are they standalone or serialized?

You really get what you have come to expect with The X-Files, which is a combination of the ongoing Mulder and Scully conspiracy saga, relationship and standalone episodes that will come interspersed. That said, it will all be of a piece, meaning that it won't feel disconnected. It'll all feel as if it's taking place in what I would call television "real time."

What is their relationship?

As we saw in the second movie they were together, not married. Living together. But when we come back we will find that relationship is not where we left it.

Fans still haven't gotten a proper love scene. Mulder and Scully had a child together, so why was their relationship never explicitly consummated?

It was part of the mystery of The X-Files. That relationship was kind of mysterious. Did they get together? Didn't they get together? If they've got a child together, when did they get together? These are questions that we will deal with and answer in good time.

How have they changed?

They've grown up. They've matured, their sensibilities have matured, their relationship has matured and evolved.

You know during the course of the show, Scully the skeptic actually became the believer and Mulder the believer actually became the skeptic and then that switched back. So there have been many changes. ... These characters who are true to themselves have gone through many changes and we'll play that in this series of six.

In the days leading up to one of his craziest stunts ever, tightrope walker Nik Wallenda has done the following: drop his kid off at school, paint windowsills, mow the lawn.

INTERVIEW

Paul Bettany is a futuristic Vision — but he can't hear you

Paul Bettany couldn't hear anything.

When the 43-year-old actor initially donned a noggin-encasing headpiece to portray the mysterious Vision in Avengers: Age of Ultron, in theatres Friday, Bettany could barely make out what anyone was saying around him. That isolation ended up fuelling his imposing performance in the followup to the 2012 smash that brought together Marvel's mightiest heroes.

"I would go to a place of real Zen, where I meditated on the line of thousands and thousands of actors that would love to be in my position in an uncomfortable suit," said Bettany in a recent interview at Disney Studios. "However, I would be lying to say it didn't take a great deal of (expletive) effort not to rip it off. They ended up drilling holes in it because I literally couldn't hear anything."

After five years of voicing Tony Stark's soothing operating system sidekick J.A.R.V.I.S. in the previous Avengers and Iron Man films, Bettany's role as the purple-skinned Vision marks the first time in front of the cameras in a Marvel film for the lanky British actor best known for starring in such films as Wimbledon, The Da Vinci Code and Priest.

"The first day I walked on set, Robert (Downey Jr.) made a lovely speech welcoming me," said Bettany. "Everybody was completely convivial and pleasant. They were making jokes — or at least I think they were making jokes because I couldn't hear a (expletive) thing. It's actually a really nice atmosphere on those sets. Often, it's not like that."

Bettany is portraying perhaps the best-kept secret of the second Avengers outing. In the comics, the commanding Vision is a type of android dubbed a "synthzoid" by Ultron, the nefarious robot that created him. The cinematic rendition is similarly fashioned by Ultron (played by James Spader as an evil artificial intelligence program).

However, this Vision might not be what he seems.

"He's an android, technically, but I would say he's what's next," said writer-director Joss Whedon.

"He's more evolved than the rest of us, which may prove to be a good thing or not. To me, this Vision feels like what it meant to me to read him as a kid. He has that calm distance but is also strangely emotional. Paul is just sooo phenomenal as him."

Range Rover has compact crossover covered on headroom. Evoque is also a "compact" crossover. It's shorter than a Ford Escape. So the cargo area is predictably tight, too.

Up front in the driver's cockpit, however, you are oblivious to such trifling things.

Everything that touches your body is luxurious, and everything in sight is "high style." I particularly like the rotary gear selector that rises slowly up from the console after the vehicle starts — very James Bond-ish — and the way the big infotainment screen is smoothly integrated in the dash. It doesn't look like an add-on as it does in lesser vehicles. The touchscreen itself, however, is a bit slow to respond, which wouldn't be so irritating if you didn't need it for so many regular functions, like changing radio stations and adjusting seat-warmer settings.

Once under the power of its Ford-sourced 2.0-litre turbocharged "four," it's evident Evoque is designed for spirited driving.

Land Rover made sure Evoque was especially light for its size, and the new torque vectoring system, called ActiveDriveline 4WD, means you can attack corners more quickly than you would otherwise. The ride is also quite firm. It gets even firmer with the low-profile tires on this Dynamic model.

And it's not just fantastic looking for a crossover. It looks great, period. Our tester was a Dynamic, the Evoque's highest trim level, so was further bolstered in the looks department with 20-inch wheels, and more aggressive bumpers, tailpipes, and grille. It was also rendered in an awesome metallic shade of Orkney Grey. When I drove the beast to Detroit, it actually got a thumbs-up from the U.S. border guard.

The price to be paid for the sloping roofline at the rear, and smallish rear side-glass, is poor rearward visibility, and a rear seating area that is a bit claustrophobic and short

Small and agile, the Evoque is effortlessly propelled by its 240-hp engine. The only glitch is a tendency to give you too much power, when you first dip into the throttle.

SAFETY

Self-driving cars to save lives: Google exec

Self-driving vehicles hold the key to reducing traffic fatalities and will transform the automobile industry, a top Google executive predicted.

Ray Kurzweil, a leading expert in artificial intelligence who joined the Internet search giant in 2012, told the recent annual conference of the Society of Automotive Engineers that the rapidly declining cost of computing power and the advances in artificial intelligence will make autonomous driving a reality.

Kurzweil told the audience that autonomous driving, utilizing artificial intelligence, is definitely coming. "The technology works. It's not far away," said Kurzweil, though he was not prepared to say just when self-driving cars will become a common sight.

"Google advised me to share with you they don't know the answer ... The technology is not going to be introduced until it's ready."

The need and value of autonomous vehicles is clear, he told hundreds of the industry's top engineers. "Google cars have gone close to a million miles without incident," he said.

"Some day an autonomous car will cause an accident and it will be big news. But while we've been talking, several people have died from human drivers."

Autonomous cars "are ultimately going to save millions of lives," he said, noting that traffic accidents kill 1.2 million people worldwide a year now.

"They also provide more efficient use of roads and parking lots. There are a lot of benefits."

But he said Google was not going to let its self-drive cars into the market "until they're safe."

"They have to be much more reliable than the technology they replace."

The appearance of the original Google Car prototype touched off a race among the world's automakers. Ford, Mercedes-Benz, Volkswagen and Nissan have set up engineering centres near Google's headquarters in Silicon Valley, Calif., to focus on self-driving technologies.

"People will still buy cars," Kurzweil said. "But the Uber model with self-driving cars will become very popular."

"We should share our cars. I think that model will grow when we have autonomous cars. AFP

AlcoStop uses sensors in seats, steering wheel

If you've been drinking, you may not get far with AlcoStop, the automotive safety system designed by a group of students at the Institute of Technology of Cintalapa in Mexico. Unlike other devices of its kind, it doesn't require puffing into a breathalyzer device. Instead, sensors inlaid in the seat, shift lever and steering wheel — all capable of detecting the blood alcohol level of the person holding it — will disable the car if required. The system includes a GPS tracking unit that allows for real-time monitoring of the car's location should the would-be driver be too confused to explain where he or she is. In case the car is disabled, an accompanying application alerts family or friends to go and pick up the driver. AFP

Lincoln crafts new ways to sit

DESIGN

Seats in new sedan to be adjustable 30 ways

Jil
McIntosh
For Metro

Is it possible to have too many choices? Lincoln doesn't think so, at least when it comes to seats: Those in its upcoming new Continental luxury sedan will be adjustable 30 different ways.

"We didn't set out to make 30 ways and say that's what it needed," says Scott Tobin, director of Lincoln product development. "But we started with an anthropometric study, and saw what support is needed to reduce fatigue while driving, and encourage circulation and comfort."

A lot goes into developing any new seat, primarily because so much is required of it. It has to fit a wide variety of body shapes and heights; it has to be comfortable, but not so squishy that it isn't supportive; it may have to accommodate electric adjustment motors and heating elements, if the car is so equipped; and it has to meet federally mandated standards for occupant safety in a crash. And on top of all of that, automakers have to try to make it as light as possible, because extra weight will affect fuel economy.

The Continental will be Lincoln's most luxurious model, and while the company has only shown a concept version so far, the seats are expected to stay virtually the same in the production model. The designers started with a metal frame and foam as with most seats, but the foam in this one is supported by a layer of polymer plastic.

"These have a different, more revolutionary support system that can flex with your body," Tobin says. "They're almost like a leaf spring, and they support the foam that supports the body. It's about keeping the lower back stable and solid, and then you can adjust for the upper back."

Bolsters on the sides of the seat help to keep the occupants in place, but unlike the solid foam bolsters that other manufacturers use, this Lincoln uses air-filled ones. They deflate when the door is opened, making it easier to slide in and out of the seat, but then pump back up again to provide support.

Perhaps the seat's most important innovation is its thigh support. Many vehicles have these, which slide forward or lift up from the seat to support the back of the knee, but Lincoln's are unique in that the support is split in half, and each side can be individually adjusted. The driver's legs are always at different positions, since one leg must work the throttle and brake, and these individual supports can handle any angle.

"We all naturally splay (our legs) when we sit, and the knee falls out," Tobin says. "You have to think about that. We're all different heights, and these cushion lengths need to be different because (otherwise) you can tweak your back after all day in the car."

Riots spawn closed-doors game at Camden Yards

Weekend series between Orioles, Rays shifts to Tampa

After two postponements caused by rioting in Baltimore, the Orioles and Chicago White Sox will play Wednesday at Camden Yards in what is believed to be the first game in major-league baseball's 145-season history without fans in the seats.

Because of the unsettled environment in Baltimore, where rioters burned a drug store and set police cars ablaze on Monday night, officials moved the game up five hours from its original 7:05 p.m. starting time and closed it to the public.

In addition, Baltimore's Friday-to-Sunday series against Tampa Bay was shifted from Camden Yards to Tropicana Field in St. Petersburg, Fla., with Baltimore remaining the home team and batting last.

"It's all about what's best for the city and the safety of our people," Orioles manager Buck Showalter said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press. "The last thing you want to do is put the fans in harm's way. You have to err on the side of safety."

Jones faces hit-and-run felony charge

UFC light heavyweight champion Jon (Bones) Jones has made his first court appearance in connection with a hit-and-run that police say left a pregnant woman with a broken arm.

Jones appeared in an Albuquerque, N.M., court with his lawyer Tuesday and left without speaking to reporters. He is facing a felony charge of leaving the scene of an accident involving death or personal injuries.

Jones was released Monday on a $2,500 bond.

A judge did not impose travel restrictions on Jones.

According to police, witnesses said that Jones ran from a crash Sunday that hospitalized a pregnant woman but quickly came back to grab "a large handful of cash" from the car.

Authorities say the accident occurred in southeastern Albuquerque when the driver of a rented SUV ran a red light.

Edwin looks to another May run

The Blue Jays are in a bad place right now. Heading into Tuesday night's game they had lost four straight. Their bullpen is in disarray. Their starting rotation has allowed the most home runs in the majors.

Jose Reyes is on the disabled list and Jose Bautista is playing through a bum shoulder.

Adding to the team's concerns is Edwin Encarnacion, who since hitting a pair of homers on April 21 — including a mammoth blast that travelled 463 feet into the upper deck at the Rogers Centre, the third-longest home run in the majors this year — has been in a deep funk, managing just a single over his last 24 plate appearances before Tuesday. But there is hope on the horizon.

"It's turning into his month here soon," manager John Gibbons said recently with a smile. "Release the beast!"

I hope I have a great May this year, too, so I'm excited.

Edwin Encarnacion

Last year, Encarnacion had a May for the ages. He hit 16 homers — tying Mickey Mantle for the most ever by an American League hitter in May — and drove in 33 runs. He became just the third player in Major League Baseball history to have five multi-homer games in a month.

"Yeah, it was something crazy," Encarnacion said. "I'd never seen something like that in my career, the way I was last May."

Encarnacion is traditionally a slow starter. His career on-base-plus-slugging percentage in April is .770, nearly 80 points lower than his average OPS for the season's other five months.

WOMEN'S SOCCER

Herdman feels veteran will benefit Canada on or off pitch

First an injured anterior cruciate ligament last October and then a broken fifth metatarsal in the foot in March during her comeback. The breaks have all been bad for veteran Canadian midfielder Diana Matheson recently.

"I was far enough in my ACL training that I was able to break my foot, unfortunately," Matheson said wryly after being named to the Canadian women's World Cup team.

The 31-year-old from Oakville, Ont., had the same injury in her left foot in 2010. Now she has matching screws in each foot.

With 166 caps, Matheson is a leader for the Canadian team on and off the field. So coach John Herdman included her in his 23-woman roster for the 24-team tournament that kicks off June 6. Herdman will give her every chance to get back to action.

If she is not ready, he can bring in an alternate up to 24 hours before the tournament. Matheson says if she can't make it in time, she will step aside.

"It's a no-brainer," she said in an interview Monday. "There's other people who are killing themselves and working hard to make this team and they would deserve the shirt, for sure."

But her teammates believe anything is possible with Matheson. And Herdman says either way, she will play a key leadership role for the team.

Because of the foot injury, Matheson was using crutches last week. But she put them aside Monday, walking gingerly down the stairs as the midfielder known simply as D joined her teammates at an outdoor pep rally-style event to announce the squad.

When the five-foot Matheson went down during the October friendly against Japan, she knew right away she had injured her anterior cruciate ligament.

She had seen enough people suffer the injury. An "off-balance plant and twist."

Goalie Erin McLeod has endured two ACL injuries. Lauren

Sesselmann, Melissa Tancredi and Jonelle Filigno have also come back from the same injury. "It took me a lot longer than it's taking Diana. She's like another breed," Filigno said with a laugh. "I don't know what it is but her body heals quick."

Matheson believes she would have been able to get some games in ahead of the World Cup had she not had to rehab her knee. "The reality is I won't have that time so it's going to be more jumping straight into the World Cup. Hopefully it's the same outcome — that I'm able to have a positive impact on the team."

While her teammates return home for a 10-day break after the roster announcement, Matheson will be staying in Vancouver to continue her rehab. THE CANADIAN PRESS

NHL

Habs hail Price's impact

After the Montreal Canadiens held on to eliminate Ottawa in the sixth game of their first-round playoff series, coach Michel Therrien said more than once that "it's a good thing we had Carey Price on our side."

Therrien said the same often this season as the Canadiens, a low-scoring squad that leans heavily on its goaltender, saw Price produce a career campaign that will probably earn him the Vezina Trophy as the league's top goalie but may also bring him the Hart Trophy as most valuable player.

Price saved his best for last against Ottawa, posting a 43-save shutout in a 2-0 victory on Sunday night. He rebounded from allowing five goals in Game 5, which had given the Senators momentum that was crushed by Brendan Gallagher's first-period goal and Price's dominance in the net. "I had no doubt about Carey Price," added Therrien. "I knew he was going to be the best player."

The win put Montreal into the second round against either Detroit or Tampa Bay. Either way, the series is to start Friday night at the Bell Centre.

The 27-year-old Price has been doing it all season, going 44-16-8 in 66 starts and leading the NHL in goals-against average (1.96) and save percentage (.933). His NHL-best 44 wins in a season was a team record, two more than the mark set by legends Jacques Plante (1956 and 1962) and Ken Dryden (1976).

"He's the best player every night, he's the best player on our team," said Habs winger Max Pacioretty. "He's the best competitor I've ever seen."
